Chronicle Graphics helps project managers build better resumes

Project management software company to make its OnePager product available to project managers who need to create a portfolio of their projects to show potential employers.

CENTENNIAL, COLO – April 22, 2009 – Chronicle Graphics, makers of OnePager timeline snapshot software, announced today a program designed to enhance the resumes of project managers.

As project managers look for jobs in the current economic conditions, having a good resume is important, but the ability to visually present past accomplishments truly sets applicants apart. Like artists, architects, and other professionals, project managers should create portfolios of their work. Project portfolios are a great way to communicate past successes, and highlight abilities.

Chronicle Graphics recognizes this need in the project management community. For a limited time, Chronicle Graphics is making 60 day OnePager licenses available to any project manager that wants to augment their resume with a portfolio of past projects.

The program is open to all project managers, regardless of whether they are unemployed and looking for a new job, or employed and wanting to be prepared for the future. For more information, or to sign up for the program, project managers are encouraged to visit the Community section of the Chronicle Graphics web site.
